

gracious givers. And then we need to learn how to express genuine appreciation for and to those who share God's gracious provision with us, and to do this without guilt, embarrassment, resentment, coldness, or covetousness, and with acceptance, gratitude, humility, warmth, and contentment.

We need to learn the grace of giving, especially as we think of our Lord's great giving. But we also need to learn the grace of receiving. May the Holy Spirit of grace and blessing Himself be our teacher!
