

(2) It is spiritual, respecting thoughts, feelings, motives, and inward states of hearts, as well as actions.

(3) That every command implies a corresponding prohibition, and every prohibition a corresponding command; and every promise a corresponding threatening, and every threatening a corresponding promise.

(4) That under one sin or duty all of the same kind are forbidden or commanded, together with all that, directly or indirectly, are the causes or occasions of them.

(5) That we are not only bound to fulfil the law ourselves, but also to help others to do so as far as we can.